SUBJECT

Discuss and determine opportunities for public outreach and education by the Historic Landmark Commission.

BACKGROUND

This work session was initially presented to the Historic Landmark Commission (HLC) on November 14, 2022. The HLC asked to reschedule the work session to a later date to allow commissioners time to brainstorm. The work session has been rescheduled for the January 23, 2023 HLC meeting.

Over the past year, the HLC has discussed interest in conducting public outreach and finding innovative ways to educate the public about historic preservation. As part of Goal #4, Policies 4.1 and 4.2 of the Denton Historic Preservation Plan state that the HLC participate in the following ways:

- Support innovative education initiatives that inform, engage new audiences, and tell the stories of Denton's multi-cultural and generational populations.
- Promote the use of existing programs and tools to educate the public on historic preservation's benefits and advance community preservation goals.

Therefore, Staff seeks feedback from the HLC regarding which public outreach events and education initiatives that the Commission would like to pursue during the upcoming year in order to facilitate historic preservation education within the community.

EDUCATION AND OUTREACH

A community that is engaged and informed about the advantages and benefits of historic preservation is a critical element to a successful historic preservation program at the local level. Engaged stakeholders can become investors in historic properties, involved citizens in neighborhood and commercial district revitalization, and effective advocates at the municipal level for appropriate preservation policies. Therefore, going forward, promoting the importance of historic preservation and the stewardship of Denton’s historic resources should be a high priority for the City, the Historic Preservation Commission, and its preservation partners. Opportunities should always be explored with entities, non-profit groups, and governmental agencies to forge new partnerships in preservation advocacy activities.

ISSUE SUMMARY

Currently, the Denton County Office of History and Culture and the Denton County Historical Commission lead many preservation education and outreach efforts in the Denton community. The Office of History and Culture manages the Courthouse-on-the-Square Museum and Historical Park, an ongoing lecture series, activities during National Historic Preservation Month, guided tours, and a research room and a special collections archive. Beyond the County’s programs, the City of Denton and Historic Denton, Inc., also sponsor various tour and outreach activities. While local education and advocacy efforts are significant, local stakeholders recognize that developing broader support for preservation in Denton and providing additional technical assistance service to local residential property owners is needed. That will help change the perception that the Historic Landmarks Commission does not work with or assist local property owners.

Preservation Partners

The following are key or potential preservation partners, organizations, and entities in the City of Denton.

Denton County Office of History and Culture

Headquartered in Denton and established in 1969, the Denton County Office of History and Culture operates the 1896 Courthouse-on-the-Square Museum and the Denton County Historical Park. In addition to overseeing the Denton County Historical Society, they provide education and outreach to Denton County citizens, which includes the following programs:

- Traveling Museum and Speakers Bureau – presents information on historical topics for school children in grades 1-8.
- Denton County Junior Historians – provides an opportunity for high school students (grades 9-12) to work together to discuss and engage in local history in new and interesting ways. Members attend meetings twice a month on Tuesday evenings, volunteer at special events, and work together on group projects.
- Tea and History – is an open house held once a month at the Denton County Historical Park that serve as question and answer session on Denton history.
- Denton County Heritage Business Program – promotes and recognizes longstanding businesses throughout the county that have been in operation for over 50 years. Eligible businesses receive a Heritage Business decal along with a framed copy of the resolution and a photo.

Denton County Historical Commission

The Commission’s goals are to preserve, protect, and promote the history of Denton County. Members are appointed by the Denton County Commissioner’s Court, and meetings are held monthly at the Denton County Historical Park (except for June, July, November, and December). The Commission oversees the Denton County Historical Marker program, which provides recognition for significant buildings, structures, sites, and people within the county.

Texas Historical Commission

The Texas Historical Commission, located in Austin, is the state agency for historic preservation, which consults with counties, local communities, citizens, and organizations to preserve the state’s architectural, archaeological, and cultural resources. The Commission manages several programs including the National Register of Historic Places, the Certified Local Government program, the Recorded Texas and Antiquities Landmark programs, Federal Section 106 reviews and state archaeology protection programs. The Agency also reviews project applications for the Federal and State Historic Preservation Tax Credits.

Denton Main Street Association

The Denton Main Street Association is a 501 (c) 6 non-profit organization that works in cooperation with the City of Denton’s Economic Development Department to implement the Main Street Approach to traditional commercial districts revitalization. Since the Denton Main Street Association establishment, the downtown has seen storefront and building improvements, new business start-ups, new events and downtown marketing activities, a diverse business mix, and increased utilization of ground and upper-floor spaces. While the Downtown remains vibrant, work is still required to ensure quality infill development and adaptive use initiatives for some of downtown’s key properties.

Preservation Texas

Preservation Texas, based in Austin, is the statewide preservation advocacy organization; the organization manages several initiatives, including a statewide endangered properties list and an annual awards program. It also conducts a “preservation day” and “preservation summit” on important preservation issues when the Texas legislature is in session.

Historic Denton, Inc.

Historic Denton, Inc., is a local non-profit preservation advocacy organization.

EDUCATION AND OUTREACH GOALS, POLICIES, AND RECOMMENDATIONS

GOAL #4: INCREASE THE AWARENESS OF HISTORIC PRESERVATION BENEFITS THROUGH ONGOING OUTREACH AND EDUCATIONAL ACTIVITIES, YOUTH ENGAGEMENT, AND OTHER PROGRAMMING ACTIVITIES.

POLICY 4.1 FOR DECISION-MAKERS: SUPPORT INNOVATIVE EDUCATION INITIATIVES THAT INFORM, ENGAGE NEW AUDIENCES, AND TELL THE STORIES OF DENTON’S MULTI-CULTURAL AND GENERATIONAL POPULATIONS.

Recommendation #4.1: Create “crowdsourced” Denton history websites.

Increasingly, many heritage organizations and preservation entities have turned to crowd-sourced developed websites to collect archival information — photographs, newspaper clippings, and obituaries, for example — to engage and inform local Denton residents and stakeholders on the community’s history, historic buildings, and important people that shaped the city’s development over time. Crowd-sourced heritage websites also helps facilitate volunteer involvement in archival information collection and posting and building a sense of community over the long-term between contributors and users of the information. Such websites could focus on different topic areas, such as Denton’s African-American story, the development of the Courthouse Square, the universities, or Denton’s historic neighborhoods. Ideally, however, one website could house information for any number of topics of interest to local stakeholders and entities. Key elements of a successful crowd-sourced website include:

- Accessibility — data and archival information should be easily accessible from the website to the public.
- Usability — uploading and contributing information to the website should be straightforward and require a minimal level of effort.
- Attractive Design — websites that employ a consistent, clean, graphic-rich, and organized design are more likely to attract regular users.
- Interactivity — functions that allow users to interact with the content, post comments, and subscribe to newsletters and updates from the website.
- Content sharing — incorporating sharing functionality allows user to share information with those who outside the website’s community.
- Current — the website is updated regularly and actively-managed.

The City and the Historic Landmark Commission, the Denton County Office of History and Culture, the local universities, or other organizations and entities could potentially organize and manage such a website. In other cities, neighborhood associations have also sponsored and maintained crowdsourced history websites of their neighborhoods.

Recommendation #4.2: Encourage public participation in crowdsourced community history storytelling activities.

The objectives behind crowd-sourced history websites can also apply to public “storytelling” activities — for instance, temporary exhibits created from artifacts collected and donated by local residents or organized events that bring different generations together to share stories and memories, such as local Denton war veterans joined with high-schoolers to learn about Denton life during World War II or the Korean and Vietnam wars. Another storytelling activity could involve the noted architect O’Neil Ford focused on interviews with those who knew, worked with him, or lived in one his Denton dwellings. The Historic Landmark Commission could partner with the Denton County Office of History and Culture, the Denton Main Street Association, and other entities on organizing such activities.

Recommendation #4.3: Use social media and other digital technologies to promote Denton history and placemake public spaces.

Social media such as Facebook, Twitter, and Instagram can be useful tools in promoting local preservation and education and advocacy activities. Some communities use Twitter or developed specialized smartphone applications to host question and answer sessions on historic home rehabilitation topics or how to access local incentive programs. Still other communities have produced digital projection shows displayed on empty downtown building walls or public plazas highlighting key figures and events in a local history.

Recommendation #4.4: Create a Denton committee of young preservation professionals.

Mentoring the next generation of preservation advocates and stewards of local history is a high priority for many communities. The Denton County Office of History and Culture organizes a Denton County Junior Historians program for high school students to work together on local history projects. Perhaps, this group’s activities could be expanded to include preservation advocacy efforts, networking activities, and annual social events to broaden its involvement among high schoolers as well as local university students and African Americans. The program could also be more formalized to include a base membership fee to underwrite activities, a bi-annual newsletter, discounts at local events, and a yearly awards program recognizing special volunteer contributions or project accomplishments.

Recommendation #4.5: Create a construction trades training program focused on historic building rehabilitation.

A local program focused on training the next generation of tradesman in preservation carpentry, window restoration, masonry repair, and other skills could pro-actively engage diverse youth in preserving places linked to the African-American experience in Denton. Such a program could be housed and managed within the construction engineering department of North Texas University, with the City of Denton and the Denton County Office of History and Culture and other entities as program partners.

Recommendation #4.6: Develop an Internet-accessible database for headstones in Denton’s historic cemeteries.

Denton has several historic cemeteries — important cultural landscapes that tell the stories of Denton’s important citizens — including two municipal-owned ones, the Oakwood and IOOF cemeteries, as well as the Cooper Creek Cemetery located just outside the Denton city limits. These cemeteries are significant resources for those with genealogical interests. A headstone and grave markers inventory could be prepared and digitized in a database for internet access, linked to the websites of the City and Denton County Office of History and Culture.

POLICY 4.2 FOR DECISION-MAKERS: PROMOTE THE USE OF EXISTING PROGRAMS AND TOOLS TO EDUCATE THE PUBLIC ON HISTORIC PRESERVATION'S BENEFITS AND ADVANCE COMMUNITY PRESERVATION GOALS.

Recommendation #4.7: Improve visibility and awareness of tax exemption program to increase participation.

Typically, two to three projects per year are approved under the existing tax exemption program. Currently, the ordinance establishing the tax exemption for improvements to “historically significant sites” (City Code §10-133) is not mentioned on the City’s website — an interested citizen would have to gain knowledge of the program by word of mouth or by reading the Denton Development Code. The City could market the program through downloadable PDF brochures from the City’s historic preservation website page or through other news and social media channels.

Recommendation #4.8: Increase awareness and use of Federal Rehabilitation Tax Credit.

This program, established in 1976, offers a 20 percent tax credit off the bottom line of qualified rehabilitation costs for rehabilitation of a National Register-listed, or eligible, commercial building. In Texas, it is administered by the Texas Historical Commission. The tax credit is best suited to larger commercial buildings in downtown Denton; however, it has seen no use in recent years. The Denton Historic Landmark Commission and the Development Services Office should promote and target the tax credit to downtown properties that could best take advantage of the incentive.

Recommendation #4.9: Include additional historic preservation information materials in the City of Denton website.

In addition to information on incentives, the City’s historic preservation website page should include other downloadable information pieces, including design guideline publications, nomination and designation reports, workshop and training announcements, and the Denton Historic Preservation Plan, and links to other community plans and planning documents.

Recommendation #4.10: Create a marketing plan to encourage additional Local Landmark designations.

An annual landmark designation study list, consisting of properties determined significant through ongoing survey and documentation work, should serve as the basis for targeted outreach and marketing efforts in encouraging new Local Landmark designations. For instance, a Local Landmarks study list subcommittee of the Historic Landmark Commission, could develop and mail a designation benefits brochure or conduct a workshop on the designation process to property owners. Some form of ongoing marketing and outreach should result in new property owners willing to learn more about the opportunities for local landmarking.

Recommendation #4.11: Provide training to local realtors and bankers.

Training programs that educate local realtors and bankers on City of Denton historic districts and preservation procedures, available incentives, and overall preservation benefits will provide them the necessary knowledge to inform prospective home buyers. Realtors and bankers are key intermediaries in the sale and disposition of historic properties and should be aware of preservation’s benefits to the value of homes and neighborhoods. For example, the City of San Antonio Office of Historic Preservation offers an annual certification training to local realtors and developers.

GOAL 4

Increase the awareness of historic preservation benefits through ongoing outreach and educational activities, youth engagement, and other programming activities.
